Gov't keen to solidify partnership with private sector post-virus crisis – official

AMMAN — A senior government official on Wednesday stressed that the government would ensure the continuation of its partnership with the private sector “when the COVID-19 pandemic is over”. Adviser to the prime minister and head of the public-private partnership (PPP), Mahmoud Khoshman, said the partnership is vital to boost investments and ensure hard currency circulation in the Kingdom. “We need to join hands with the private sector because we do not have enough infrastructure while ensuring a fair and transparent process,” Khoshman stressed. He added that His Majesty King Abdullah and the government strongly believe in the private sectors’ economic contribution to the economy of the country and “believe that the strong partnership between the private and public sector will attract more investments and boost the economy”. At the same time, the government official added “the international community’s support to Jordan is increasing and now it is our role to implement good projects that would benefit the country’s economy so that it would reflect positively on our citizens”.

JIC-AmCham session highlights Jordan’s efforts to attract investments in face of

Chairman of the Jordan Investment Commission (JIC) Khaled Wazani and the American Chamber of Commerce in Jordan (AmCham JO) on Wednesday discussed the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on investments in Jordan and the steps taken by the JIC to attract investments and support existing investments. The session, which was held via videoconference, was moderated by AmCham JO Vice President Samer Asfour, with the attendance of AmCham JO President Mohammad Bataineh, AmCham JO members and a number of private sector representatives, the Jordan News Agency, Petra, reported. Wazani said that Royal directives and His Majesty King Abdullah’s direct follow-up on government measures have contributed to attracting global attention to Jordan for its ability to deal with the coronavirus pandemic. In light of that attention, the JIC, through its partnership with all entities in the public and private sectors, has developed work plans and an initiative for investment resilience and economic sustainability, he said. The plans include several axes centred on promising entrepreneurial investments and investments in facing existing and future challenges, as well as those that have the potential for expansion and domestic and external access, the chairman noted. Prior to the COVID-19 crisis, the JIC in cooperation with all government bodies launched 68 investment opportunities at an investment volume of $4.5 billion covering most sectors of the Kingdom, including the tourism, industry, health, agriculture and services sectors, he added.
