Airports to reopen in August — Adaileh

Procedures for the gradual reopening of the airport were announced on Tuesday during a meeting at the Prime Ministry, with the first batch of flights arriving in the first-half of August, according to Minister of State and Media Affairs Amjad Adaileh. Jordan on March 17 closed its airports for regular travel as part of coronavirus protection measures, which Adaileh said was an “effective decision” as proven by the “calm health situation and low case numbers” in the Kingdom. Adaileh noted that “even at the beginning of the pandemic, bringing back our sons and daughters was among the government’s priorities, but given that Jordan is at the lower-mild stage, it is time to gradually bring back commercial flights”. The lower-mild stage, also called the “blue stage”, is part of the government’s coronavirus response plan that allows the reopening of airports with regards to health and safety precautions, according to Adaileh. Flights will be open to countries with a similar virus situation to that of the Kingdom, most important of which are “green” countries, which require simplified health and safety procedures. “Green countries” include: Austria, Canada, China, Cyprus, Denmark, Estonia, Georgia, Germany, Greenland, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Malaysia, Malta, Monaco, New Zealand, Norway, Switzerland, Taiwan and Thailand. The government is also working on classifying “yellow” countries, which require relatively simplified quarantine procedures, and “red” countries, which require extra health, safety and quarantine procedures. Meanwhile, Minister of Health Saad Jaber said that 46 virus cases, all from abroad, were registered in the Kingdom on Tuesday.

UN launches Socio-Economic Framework for coronavirus response in Kingdom

The United Nations Country Team on Tuesday launched its Socio-Economic Framework (SEF) for the COVID-19 response in Jordan. The SEF will serve as the UN’s roadmap to support the government of Jordan’s efforts to address the socio-economic impact of COVID-19 by repurposing and scaling up the UN’s development response in Jordan, said UNHCR Representative in Jordan Dominik Bartsch. Bartsch, who was addressing a press conference at the United Nations Development Fund (UNDP) headquarters in Amman, added that the framework complements the national COVID-19 health plan and humanitarian assistance for refugee populations in camps, urban settings and vulnerable host communities. The framework, according to Bartsch, includes five pillars: Protecting health, protecting people, economic recovery, macro-economics and multilateral cooperation, and social cohesion and resilience. For each pillar, Bartsch said, the UN has assessed the impacts of the crisis to help understand what is needed to simultaneously address immediate and medium-term needs, while not losing sight of the Sustainable Development Goals.
