Jordan Response Plan funding stands at $644m — Planning Ministry

Funding provided to the Jordan Response Plan to the Syrian Crisis has so far reached $644 million, constituting 28 per cent of the aid set under the scheme totalling $2.49 billion, according to data released by the Ministry of Planning and International Cooperation on Sunday. The ministry's figures showed that the plan's funding shortfall has amounted to some $1.605 billion since the beginning of 2020, out of the total annual budget allocated to support Syrian refugees in Jordan, the Jordan News Agency, Petra, reported. The plan assigned about $155 million to support refugees, some $139 million was allocated to host communities, and around $350 million was also allocated to the Treasury, which was recently added to the plan for 2020, while the institutional capacity building component has not received any funding, showed the ministry's data.

Jordan, EU sign 700m-euro soft loan agreement

Jordan on Sunday signed a soft loan agreement and a memorandum of understanding worth 700 million euros, according to a Planning Ministry statement. The financing granted by the EU, at a total value of 700 million euros, will be disbursed to the Kingdom in three batches, the first, at a value of 250 million euros, is expected in October, while the second 250-million euro batch, will be granted during the first-quarter of 2021, after achieving the related indicators of the second tranche.

The third installment of 200 million euros is also expected during 2021, to be disbursed after the completion of the related indicators of the third batch.
